The War on the Union. Tuesday's Dispatches.

The affairs of the Government are conducted with suchs creey that we have to a wait the progress of actual events, almost before we are able to arrive at any definite conclusion as to the general work in progress. To this fact may be attributed one of the causes of so many flying run ora and conjectures. But we pri pose only to notice facts, as nearly as we can sift them. S nator Wade has made a personal visit to Fort Monroe and reports three thous and troops in camp. Health good and plenty of provisions. A fight occurred on Monday, between the battery of the rebels at the mouth of Elizabeth river, and the Monticello and Freeborn, Unit d. States steamers. The battery was completely demolished, and the rebels fled for their lives. Freeborn captured two schoners on the Potemac, filled with rewere taken to Washington and the men put in prison. The Charleston blockade is said to be deficient. A Liverpool ship in a tempting to run the blockade, was seized by the fleet and towed into safe flying at the time, and of course cannot claim British interference. The smallpox is said to exist to a considerable ex tent among the rebels at Harper's Ferry.

Information was received at the war department that some of the rebels were oing to western Virginia to subdue the Unionists. Additional force is ordered for the blockade at Charleston. The vote on secession in Virginia was the merest farce-all the rebels from the south being permitted to vote. The secession sympathizers of sourthern Indiana are causing ring the strife between the United and some trouble, and several have been notified to either dry up or leave. The depreciation of the bank bills has been rapid since Lincoln's proc'amation. and before the summer is over they will worth about as much as Continental currency was at the close of the Revoluutienary war. The blockade of the ports and an utter suspension of business will nevitably produce such a result. A few the business men understood this, but he people generally, who are unacquaint ed with the first principles of political economy, see nothing to mar the future glory of the commercial metropolis of the Southern Confederacy, as they fondly imagine Charleston is destined to be. SOUTH CAROLINA ARROGANCE.

It seems that to be a citizen of South Carolina is more than to be a citizen o the Confederate States of America. In Charleston, the Sou hern Confederacy is always put second to South Carolina. A GOOD STURY. The Charlestonians tell a good story at their own expense, which well illustrates

The colonel of the regiment judicial power of the Government could be passing by saw the sentiael inattentive to his duty. He took away his gun, and then entered the arsenal. Not long since, when the sunrise gun was fired, a twelve-pound ball zipped through rived in Boston a few days since and has a negro's shanty, and ledged in a hotel, greatly to the consternation of an old negro and several boarders. Provisions were getting very scarce at Savannah. Bacon, which generally sells at eleven cents a round, had risen, a few days before he left, to deliteen cents;-The reliance of the people for provisions seemed mainly in their coming crops .--Bu-iness of all kinds was entirely prostrate. Our informant met large quantities of provisions going forward south from Louisville, Ky. The negroes were quiet. A gentleman from Augusta, Georgia, said, a day or two before our informant left, that if there were further calls for military companies from their vicinity, he would remove his family from there for safety. This may explain the real feeling of the people in regard to this matter. Our informant believes, that beneath all the manifested enthusiasm in behalf of the rebel cause, there is a deep undercurrent of attachment still to the old Union; and he believes that were a federal force, strong enough to protect them, thrown into Savannah, this Union feeling would be at once displayed, and make itself felt. As it now is, it is not, of course, prudent or safe for a man to show any sympathy in that direction.

THE PERLISO IN VIRGINIA. There is a great difference in the feelings of South Carolinians and Virginians. The residents of the Palmetto State are angry, waspish, overbearing, while thro'out Virginia there was a feeling of sadness. A member of the State Convention remarked to our informant that no pen could ever portray the scene in the Convention when the ordinance of secession was passed. His oath of secrecy would not let him divulge what took place, but if there were jubilant secesionists, there were heart-broken men, who still loved the old flag. Our informant says, and his words are worthy the attention of the Government: "Let Government do by Virginia as she has done by Maryland-pour in the troops, and there will be men enough to cheer the equipment. The injustice and folly of most of the censure cast upon the Government because it does not move faster in prosecuting the war against the rebels, are easily seen by those who look. We have heretofore spoken generally of the difficulties the authorities have to contend with in consequence of the presence of the traitors still left in the service, who disguise their purposes as long as possible, with the view of playing into the hands of the rebels to illustrate this point: When it was decided to employ troops for the defense of the Capital, Staff officers, after remaining long enough in the War Department to acquire as much knowledge as possible of the details, resigned, to carry that knowledge into the resigned in order to stop the work. These are but a few pages out of a whole volume of unwritten history. At every step, for a while, the Government was clogged and cripled by traitors, who drew their pay and effected loyalty so long as nothing was required of them, but who, at the critical moment when their services were wanted, deserted to the enemy.

Through to the Mississippl. The railroad bridge across the Illinois river at Meredosia is now completed, and trains leaving Teledo, says the Blade, by the Teledo & Wabash Railway, run through from the State Line to the Mississippi River, without change of cars.-This, we believe, makes but two changes between Toledo and St. Joseph, on the Missouri River, a distance of over 650 miles. This gives the T. & W. route its proper stanging as a through line to the West, and bring it into more immediate connection with the great lines which are its "continuation."
